

ipc

Information for You

ipcHealth

This brochure is about:

- your rights and responsibilities
- your privacy and personal information
- how to give feedback or make a complaint
- how to get someone to act for you and support you

You have rights and responsibilities when you use our services.

We expect staff, volunteers and clients and their carers to respect each other.

Your information is well protected

We are committed to keeping your information private. Your privacy is also protected by law. We keep your information safe under a high level of security.

If you need to, you can see your health information. You have a right to ask to see your health care record and to ask for it to be corrected if it is wrong.

Health photos or voice record

Some health workers may need to take a photo or photos as part of your care, or record your voice. If you are OK with this, you will sign your name on the consent form in your health care record.

What information do we collect about you?

We keep your name and contact details on your personal health care record. Details about your health including information about your condition, your care plan and progress with treatment are written in your health care record each time you visit.

Collecting information helps us to keep correct details about your needs, so we can care for you in the best possible way.

We also report some general information to the Department of Health. This helps in planning and improving our services.

We do not pass on any information that could be used to identify you.

Your information can only be seen by workers at IPC Health who are involved in your care. We only release information about you to other workers if you agree or if the law says we must, such as in a medical emergency.

You have a say in what happens to your information.

We will not share your information with anyone unless:

- you give consent (you agree)
- you ask us to share the details
- your life, or someone else's life, is in danger
- we think there is a serious threat to the safety or wellbeing of children or their families
- it is in your best interests
- the law tells us to do so, such as for some infectious diseases and types of cancer, or certain cases being heard by a court

You have the right to not share some of your information or limit who sees your health care record. However, this may make it harder for us to give you the best possible services.

Talk to us if you wish to change or cancel your consent.

You have the right to accept or refuse treatment.

Once your health worker has explained to you your condition(s) and the possible treatments for this condition(s) you can choose to give permission or refuse treatment. You will sign your name on the consent form in your health care record next to your choice; for example, refuse or accept treatment.

Your rights and responsibilities

What you can expect from us:

- you will be treated with kindness and respect
- you will receive high-quality service
- your ethnic, cultural and religious practices and beliefs will be respected
- you will receive information that you can understand and can have an interpreter if you need one
- you will be provided with information that helps you make choices about how to improve your health
- you will be fairly assessed for the services you need
- you will be involved in decisions about your care
- your personal information will be kept private
- you can ask for a copy of your personal information
- your permission (consent) will be obtained before we share your personal information with any other services
- you can ask for a change of worker
- you can refuse treatment

- you can refuse the service if it is not right for you now and you can let us know when you are ready
- you can refuse to have a student or researcher in the room during your appointment
- you can provide honest feedback and keep using our services
- we can choose someone to act for you and support you (an advocate) if you need
- you can include a significant other in your care

What you need to know:

- if you arrive late for an appointment, we may not be able to give you a full service at that time
- we may not be able to keep giving you services if you miss appointments without letting us know
- we can refuse service if you:
 - are drunk or affected by drugs
 - are rude and abusive to staff
 - threaten to hurt anyone
 - sexually harass anyone

What we expect from you:

- to be on time for your appointments
- if you cannot make your appointment, please let us know at least one day before
- show respect and be polite to everyone you meet while using our services
- ask for more information if you do not understand, especially if you need to give your permission for a certain treatment
- if our staff are visiting your home, please make sure it is safe for them to visit. This includes keeping pets away and not smoking when our staff are with you
- follow the advice your health worker gives you to the best of your ability
- we cannot help you if you do not tell us the things we need to know about your health
- help us keep our buildings a safe place for everyone:
- respect other people and their privacy at all times
- tell us when your personal details change
- take care of things we lend you for treatment purposes

Advocacy

An advocate is someone who acts for you to get you the services you need. They can also help you understand your rights and responsibilities around your health.

An advocate can be:

- a friend
- a family member
- someone from an advocacy service

IPC Health is happy for you to ask for an advocate. We will help you get an advocate who is right for you.

If you wish to have a friend or family member come to your appointments or be involved in your care, please speak with your IPC Health worker.

You can also contact an advocacy service and ask them to do this for you.

Advocacy services

Office of the Public Advocate

Phone: 1300 309 377
publicadvocate.vic.gov.au

Aged care advocacy

Toll free: 1800 200 422
myagedcare.gov.au

Elder Rights Advocacy

Toll free: 1800 700 600
era.asn.au

Action on Disability with Ethnic Communities

Toll free: 1800 626 078
adec.org.au

Other important numbers

Health Complaints Commissioner

Phone: 1300 582 113
hcc.vic.gov.au

Office of the Australian Information Commissioner

Phone: 1300 363 922
oaic.gov.au

Department of Families, Fairness and Housing

Phone: 1300 475 170
dffh.vic.gov.au

Department of Health

Phone: 1300 650 172
health.vic.gov.au

The Victorian Ombudsman

Toll free: 1800 806 314
ombudsman.vic.gov.au

Victorian Equal Opportunity & Human Rights Commission

Phone: 1300 292 153
humanrightscommission.vic.gov.au

For more information, contact your nearest IPC Health campus listed on the back of this brochure.

Feedback

We would like to know what you think about our services and buildings. We rely on your feedback to improve our services.

- you can write comments and add them to the feedback box in the waiting room
- you can speak to any staff member in person or on the phone
- we may ask you to fill out a Client Feedback Survey about our services. This survey asks questions to help us plan and review our services
- you are welcome to bring anyone to support you if you wish to discuss any concerns about the service
- if you are unhappy with any part of the service, you can make a formal complaint. Call the IPC Health campus you attended and ask to speak to the program manager, director or chief executive officer
- you can also contact the Health Complaints Commissioner on 1300 582 113

Any other questions?

Please talk to one of our IPC Health staff members if you have any other questions about what happens to your information while you are in our care, or if you wish to see your health care record.

To get a copy of the Information Privacy Policy, visit humanservices.gov.au/customer/privacy

